VII. Sukarno and Ambassador Jones had long inconclusive talk on Monday ranging from Middle East to Communism in Indonesia.

A. Sukarno began talk by saying, "Trouble, trouble, trouble."

B. Sukarno said continuation of B-26 attacks had pretty well wiped out recent improvement "psychological situation" between US and Indonesia.

C. Main Sukarno theme was that he was aware of PKI political threat, but that in long run non-Commies would triumph.

D. When Jones pointed out that time running out, and who would deal with interim contingencies, Sukarno pointed to self and said, "I and the military."

E. Sukarno also said he "could change Indonesia's attitude toward US overnight" if US would support Indonesia's claim to West Irian, which he noted "is an obsession with me."
